

Service Charge Information

Service Charge Information (SCI) provides rapid access to your Federal Reserve services information. Your Billing statement information is simpler, easier to use, timelier and more accessible. With online access to your Federal Reserve services information, you can view your Billing information anytime, from any Internet-connected PC within your institution.

Billing Services

SCI provides electronic access to your monthly billing Summary Statement of Service Charges, complete with drill-down capability to view the details underlying summarized transactions. The application integrates summary and detail data, which is refreshed monthly after the close of business on the fifth business day. The various views allow you to review and analyze statement data in a flexible and user-friendly presentation.

Key Features

- Complete picture of all your service charges as seen on your monthly billing statement of service charges, including your own activity, subaccount and/or respondent activity, charges passed to correspondents and earnings credits.
- Various levels of detail that enable you to drill down from summary to more detailed information.
- Online access to billing information currently available to you.
- Comprehensive details about adjustment or reversal transactions processed to your account during the monthly billing cycle.
- Complete list of Federal Reserve Bank contacts provided so you can talk directly to a person located in the office and service area where your work was processed.
- Snapshot of your earnings credits history for the past year.

Key Benefits

- Summarizes all of the information found on your monthly statement of service charges, and lets you view a variety of information related to your own service charges, your subaccount and/or respondent activity and charges passed to correspondents.
- Provides drill-down capability enabling you to pinpoint an item that calls for a closer look. In addition, you can look at summary information regarding your service charges.
- Offers a variety of reports and inquiry options, providing you with insight into the specific billing activity in your account. Three cycles of billing data are maintained should you need past information.
- Enables you to download information to your PC and/or to preview and/or print all or selected sections of your Summary Statement of Service Charges.

SCI is available via FedLine® for the Web, a flexible and powerful Web-based solution that provides rapid access to your Federal Reserve services information. FedLine for the Web uses the power of the Internet to provide your staff with convenient same-time access.

What Our Customers Have To Say

“The look and functionality are excellent. It has eliminated the handling of paper. Billing tasks that currently take three hours took 15 minutes with SCI.”

James Burns, Mid-Atlantic Corporate FCU

“SCI is a good product. I wish I had time to use it more frequently.”

Marlene Lynch, Union Planters Bank,
Memphis, Tennessee

The SCI Advantage

SCI provides both detailed and summarized billing statement information, eliminating the need to receive multiple billing statements. In addition, SCI stores three months of information from your Billing Statement of Service Charges—all available to you and your staff at any time, from anywhere within your organization.
