Contaminated currency is defined as currency that has been damaged by or exposed to contaminants, poses a health hazard or safety risk, and cannot be processed under normal operating procedures. In general, contamination may be caused by the following:

- Floodwater or any prolonged exposure to water or other liquids

- Exposure to blood, urine, feces or any other bodily fluids, including removal from any body cavity, corpse or animal
- Exposure to sewage, mold or mildew
- Exposure to any foreign substance or chemical, including dye-packs, which may pose a health hazard or safety risk

Refer to FRBservices.org for the proper packaging requirements for all contaminated currency deposits.
